Rushland and Wycombe Would Be Under Many Feet of Water

LONG-RANGE PROJECT

Incedel Executive Points Out Such May Not Materialize

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 26—(INS)—Two Bucks county communities in which more than 100 families reside would be flooded as part of the proposal of the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin (Incedel) to make more water available in sections of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York.

The general program calls for the construction of four large reservoirs in the upper Delaware River valley at a cost of $550,000,000.

The program was announced at Incedel's annual meeting last Sept. 11, but no details were released at that time of a subsidiary project calling for building a 98-foot high dam at the junction of Neshaunim Creek and Mill Creek four miles west of Newtown, Bucks County, and the subsequent flooding of about 1,600 acres.

The project would involve creation of an artificial lake, a mile wide, along both sides of Mill Creek north of the junction.

The communities of Rushland, located in the fork of the creeks and Wycombe, two miles north of Rushland, would be under many feet of water.

Approximately 50 families live in each community. Several farms and a stone quarry also would be affected.

RESOLUTION

Modern Hospital for Lower Bucks County

WHEREAS, the present hospital facilities are inadequate in the Lower Bucks County area.

WHEREAS, the population of Lower Bucks County will increase substantially within the next five years because of unprecedented construction of homes resulting from the increased industrial growth, thereby accentuating the need for expanded medical care, be it therefore

RESOLVED, that the Cornwells Fire Co. No. 1 hereby pledges its moral support for the erection of an adequately staffed hospital of at least fifty (50) beds within the area of Lower Bucks County; and we have this Ninth day of March, A. D. 1951 set our hand and seal of approval upon same.

THE WAR

By International News Service

TOKYO, March 26—(INS)—The Republic of Korea army command announced tonight its troops crossed the 38th Parallel and captured the tiny east coast village of Yonpuri, three miles inside Communist North Korea. The announcement referred to the South Korean elements which crossed the imaginary boundary as "units," implying they were heavier forces than the ROK patrols which made two penetrations one and two miles above the famous Parallel Sunday. The ROK army announcement was in a Monday night dispatch by INS war correspondent Robert Schakne from U. S. Eighth Army headquarters in Korea. It came after two tank-led American columns in West Korea joined forces above Seoul and forged a solid assault line against Chinese Red troops fleeing toward Parallel 38, less than 10 miles away.

Lahaska Matron Loses Case Over Costs of Her Garden

SAYS "IT'S A MESS"

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 26—Mrs. Mary Barnwell, of Lahaska, who owns a house in Paris and is residing in Trenton, N. J., and who was being sued by a Cross Keys couple, Robert and Louise Schilmar, for $375.40, had a verdict of $416.69 returned against her by a civil court jury.

The defendant, Mrs. Barnwell, who had to be summoned into court three times in order to settle the case, and the plaintiffs, disputed over the payment of a bill growing out of the planting of a huge flower bed at her Lahaska home in May, 1949.

The jury, which was later discharged by President Judge Hiram H. Keller, deliberated about a half hour. The verdict allowed $157.20 for 191 plants, $16.20 for 18 pounds of grass seed, $4.50 for a bale of peat, $10 for 200 pounds of plant.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Experts appraising the possibility of war in Europe this year were at a loss to explain the feeling in the United States that the situation had improved. They cited three reasons why Moscow might feel warranted in attacking Western Europe soon. The Russians have been tightening their control over economic and military forces in satellite nations.

President Truman, because of the increasing pace of defense production, is expected to ask Congress soon for as much as $10,000,000,000 in supplemental funds for the armed services. Defense needs will be taking 20 per cent of the nation's economy by the end of the year, it was estimated.

Relations with Argentina are expected to color the hemisphere conference opening in Washington today. President Truman will address the gathering. President Peron, reacting to foreign skepticism over Argentina's claim to having controlled atomic energy, said he was not interested "in what the United States or any other country in the world thinks."

EXCERPTS GIVEN FROM REPORT OF HOSPITAL CONSULTANT AT RECENT MEETING OF GENERAL COMMITTEE

In the voluminous report, submitted by James R. Mays & Associates, and Bolton, Martin & White, architects, of the proposed Lower Bucks County Hospital, there were many interesting comments as the result of a survey carefully made. Without publishing the report in detail, a selection has been made of the highlights of it. These follow:

Due to the fact that a great deal of basic information was assembled by various committees of the proposed hospital before we started our survey, we have purposely avoided the duplication of effort. We trust, however, that the members of the organization will pardon any repetition which we believe necessary.

For a number of years, many of the leading citizens of the Bristol Area have been fully cognizant of the pressing need for a public general hospital to serve the people of Lower Bucks County.

Limited efforts were made from time to time to establish such a hospital without definite results, which perhaps was due partially to the fact that there has existed in the area for a number of years one or more private hospitals.

For many years before the First World War, the growth of the Lower Bucks County Area was gradual and by no means spectacular. Since the war, however, the exact opposite has been true. The growth, both residentially and industrially, has been almost phenomenal, and

MISSING IN KOREA CHILD IS SCRATCHED

TREVOSE, Mar. 26—A likeness of a youthful soldier, appearing in a group of about 10, whom Chinese Communists state are Philadelphia area soldier, has put new hope into the hearts of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Baker, of Wunder avenue, here. They are certain that the young man is their son, Pvt. William E. Baker, 29, who was reported to them in December as having been missing since November 30th.

It was a happy day for Mrs. Baker, when Andrew H. Dillman, of Newtown, who had received a copy of the picture, telephoned Mrs. Baker. Having tried to locate the Bakers unsuccessfully, Mr. Dillman finally contacted them by telephone through aid of a mail carrier. Dillman arranged to meet the Bakers at a diner on Thursday. In the meantime he met Pvt. Baker's sister, Mrs. Frank Stowell, Trevose, and stated at the time that no two people could look more alike than Mrs. Stowell and the soldier in the picture.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan (Distributed by International News Service)

That was one of the best-dressed Easter parades New York ever had . . . you'd think John Crane had given every citizen a plain white envelope.

But I don't know why there should be so much fuss about a man giving away money for a few favors. . . . Shucks, Uncle Sam has been doing it for years and hasn't got the favors.

The nice thing about this parade though was that it enabled a number of people to get on television who hadn't been called by any committee.

Now they're thinking of having the House Un-American Activities Committee hearings televised. . . . Six actors have already insisted they have as much right to a live audition as Costello.

One fellow's lawyer says "My client refuses to testify on the grounds that it might tend to incriminate him unless he has three hours of camera rehearsal and a choice of supporting players."

Next week "John's Other Safe Deposit Box."

ACCENT ON ECONOMY

Approximately one-half of the recommendations of the Hoover Commission on Reorganization of the Executive Department of the federal government have been put into effect. It is estimated eventual savings will be $2,000,000,000 annually. If all the recommendations were put into effect, the saving will be more than $5,000,000,000, it is estimated.

Congress at present is dormant in this matter. A handful of Republicans and Democrats are trying to get the ball rolling. They propose to introduce 18 measures to modernize personnel policies, reorganize the Veterans Administration, unify federal hospital and medical facilities, merge civil functions of the Army engineers with the Bureau of Reclamation, streamline the Post Office Department by taking it out of politics, and overhaul the Department of Agriculture.

These reforms will be bitterly opposed because they run counter to selfish interests. But the federal government has become such a gigantic and costly organization that it must be operated more efficiently if the taxpayers are to have anything left after paying the government's bills.

Senator Byrd of Virginia has also suggested savings in the non-defense field that go far beyond the recommendations of the Hoover Commission. These should be enacted by Congress. Any savings possible that will cut non-essentials out of a $71,000,000,000 budget are all to the good. And there can be no doubt that 10 per cent or more can be eliminated from the budget without harming the defense effort.

TV THROWS CURVES

Observers were quoted recently as saying one never sees a fat person in Britain any more. The monotonous, restricted diet offers little temptation to gluttony. Despite this, it turns out, there still survive in Britain a few relics of a plumper age. Women, mostly, it seems.

The British Broadcasting Company, in fact, is showing a couple of them on television. Each of the pair weighs less than 200 pounds, so the two rolled into one would hardly qualify for fat lady in an American circus, but in England they are considered outstanding. They are taking a reducing diet, and each Tuesday televiewers get to look them over to see how much they have lost.

There must be plenty of other somewhat chubby lasses in Britain, too. Tens of thousands of inquiries for the slimming diet have been received. Husbands are writing in, complaining that their households have been completely disorganized since their wives lost interest in food.

Some of them object that dieting ruins the little woman's disposition, and some say they prefer her chubby and what right has TV to come right into their homes and alienate their wives' curves?

This TV thing is getting to be a worse menace all the time. A man can have TV, or he can be (if he ever was) master in his own home.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

(By Courier Staff Member)

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Oct. 30, 1902. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

NEWPORTVILLE — The cider mill in this town is kept busy making cider of superior quality, there being a fine crop of apples in the neighborhood.

TULLYTOWN — Tullytown will soon support another grocery store, for Harrison Streeter has opened his place of business on the property of Henry Lovett on Main street, opposite the hotel.

HULMEVILLE — Samuel Shay, who is employed by Elmer Praul, was very unfortunate last week. While moving a hay wagon on Monday one of the wheels ran over one toe and crushed it and on Saturday while sawing wood with a circular saw he cut off the forefinger of the right hand at the second joint. Dr. Paxson dressed the wound, after which he took him to the McKinley Memorial Hospital, Trenton.

PENN VALLEY — On last Sunday evening the Penn Valley Presbyterian Church was crowded. The occasion was the farewell services of the pastor, Rev. E. Kellmayer. At the conclusion of the services Miss S. T. Bruton, as vice-president of the Christian Endeavor Society, presented the pastor with two handsome books as tokens of the society's appreciation of his work among them. Miss Bruton made a short address. The pastor, in his address, reviewed the work done at the Penn Valley Church during his ministry.

America Hose, Hook & Ladder Co., No. 2's fair, which has been running for over a week at the Bristol auditorium, has been better patronized this year than any fair ever heretofore given by the company. The fair ends this Saturday night and those who have not yet visited the place should not fail to lend a helping hand to the boys. An attractive entertainment is provided every evening and many handsome and useful articles are on sale.

Samuel B. Ardrey, aged 73 years, died at his home on Mulberry street, last Saturday morning. Mr. Ardrey was born in England and had resided in Bristol for nearly 20 years. He was a mechanical engineer and with his sons was engaged in the business here. Up to within the last year he paid close attention to business and was in apparent good health.

The annual session of the Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance of Pennsylvania, was held on Wednesday, October 22, in Odd Fellows Temple, Philadelphia, about 300 delegates being present. The report of the grand worthy patriarch showed an increase of 1099 members during the year; also, the reports of the different committees were very encouraging. The most worthy patriarch of the National Division of North America was present and made an address, congratulating the order in Pennsylvania on their increase of membership, also addresses by P. M. W. P. Gen'l Louis Wagner, B. F. Dennison, M. M. Evenson and others. George J. Sheppard, of the Bristol Division, was unanimously elected grand worthy associate, the second highest office of the order in the state.

Probably never in the history of Bristol have such lively scenes been presented as have been enacted during the building of the trolley road from here to Morrisville. Hundreds of laborers have been at work upon the streets and the many teams make an activity that is refreshing to behold. The laborers are mostly colored men who were brought here by the contractors from Baltimore, and their happy dispositions, singing while they work, have attracted many spectators. Cabins have been erected for habitation of many of the men, near the Hollow creek. The work has progressed rapidly and the rails are now laid as far as Dorance street, and ground has been broken to the Hollow bridge. Next week it is expected the work will be completed within the borough, with the exception of laying the brick between the rails. Work is also progressing beyond the borough. A crew is at work on the Morrisville end and another gang is operating at this end in the township. It is expected the road will be completed from Bristol to Morrisville by December.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

That Last-Ditch Legend

Washington, Mar. 26.
The stock defense offered for Truman's extraordinary tolerance toward the unsavory exposures of the sordid activities upon the part of members of the White House circle and his intimate friends in official position is becoming somewhat worn and frazzled. Moreover, upon examination, it just does not stand up.

In effect, this defense is that one of Mr. Truman's outstanding characteristics is "unshakable loyalty to his friends." He trusts them. He does not believe they would do anything wrong and he will "fight to the last ditch" for them. That is the legend, but there have been instances where his loyalty was not unshakable and he did not "fight to the last ditch." Notably this was true in the case of Mr. Louis Johnson and again in the case of Mr. James Bruce.

To both these men Mr. Truman was under great obligation. He struggled hard to discharge these obligations, but yielded to the very strong pressure against them. This is not said particularly in criticism of Mr. Truman and it has nothing to do with the respective merits of the Messrs. Johnson and Bruce. But the fact remains that in dealing with them he did not live up to either the loyalty or the "last ditch" advertisements. Especially was this so in the case of Mr. Bruce, who had not sought the British Ambassadorship, performed invaluable services for Mr. Truman in 1948 and became an aspirant solely at Mr. Truman's insistence. And yet Mr. Truman permitted Mr. Bruce's personal enemies to make him — Mr. Truman — retreat from his unequivocal commitments and appoint a man of whom he had never heard and whose name he had some difficulty in remembering.

There is no doubt that Mr. Truman personally suffered considerably at having to yield in his desire to hold fast to Mr. Johnson and to appoint Mr. Bruce. But yield he did. He did not like to break his word but certainly it was broken in the case of Mr. Bruce, against whose selection no adequate reason was ever publicly advanced. And he did insist at one time that Mr. Johnson would stay as long as he wanted. Probably there will always be two points of view as to whether or not Mr. Truman was justified in his retreat. It is conceivable that a situation had arisen where it became inexpedient and very difficult for Mr. Truman to "stand by" these friends. But that does not wholly explain the contrast of his failure to live up to the Truman loyalty and last-ditch legend in their case and his stubbornness — in living up to it in others, for which he has been both lauded and criticized.

There was, for example, the case of his crony, ex-Senator Mon Wallgren, of Washington, whom he appointed to the National Resources and Security Board. Due to the fight made by Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, Mr. Wallgren was refused confirmation. He was the first man in the history of the Senate, Senator Byrd has said, to be rejected solely on the ground of "unfitness." Mr. Truman at once named him to the Federal Power Commission and, under strong White House pressure, he was confirmed for that. Other examples are afforded in the President's truculent defense of members of the White House staff, of Chairman William Boyle of the Democratic National Committee, and his aides along with other Administration officials more or less mixed up in the ugly RFC mess exposed by the Fulbright committee.

The facts this committee has brought to light constitute a scandal which has pretty well filled the country with disgust and lowered the whole Administration in public esteem. Yet Mr. Truman vigorously insists that all those thus exposed are "honorable men" and that there is nothing to criticize about their "ethical conduct or moral standards." All one can say about that is that it would be difficult, indeed, to find anyone not obviously biased in their favor or in some way connected with them to agree with him.

What, then, is the explanation of Mr. Truman's last-ditch loyalty to some of his friends and his lack of that quality toward certain others? There will be differences of opinion about that, but two things seem clear — one, that under certain conditions Mr. Truman yields to pressure and does not live up to the legend; the other, that his own ethics and moral standards can hardly be higher than those he defends. If they were, naturally, he could not defend them.

LAMP SHADES

CHICAGO, (INS) — There's a new fashion in home decorating this season. It's matching lamp shades with draperies, slipcovers and even bedspreads. A company in Chicago has started the fad by offering to make lamp shades from any fabric a customer produces. The home-maker simply buys an extra yard of material and sends it to the firm to be made into a lamp shade. She gives the shape and measurements that she desires.

Argus and Miss Mary VanVoessen, Bristol, wore gowns identical to that of the maid of honor, in pale yellow and orchid, respectively. The trio wore silver slippers and carried heart-shaped cascades of roses in three colors matching their gowns and wore matching floral wreaths in their hair.

The bride chose a gown of white nylon marquisette over satin. The tight-fitting bodice had a round neckline and was banded with five rows of narrow satin ribbon. Long, tight-fitting sleeves extended to points over the wrists. The full skirt featured rows of satin ribbon banding from the waistline to the hemline, and to the end of the short train. A pearl-headed tiara held the finger-tip veil of marquisette. White satin slippers completed her costume, and she carried a cascade of white roses. The center held a white orchid and yellow corsage.

Mr. King was attended by Mr. Elwood Smith, Edgely, his brother-in-law, as best man; and Mr. Thomas Bowers, brother of the bride, and Mr. Clarence King, brother of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The bride presented her attendants with gold bracelets with opal stones; and gave gold compacts to Mrs. Slaymaker and Miss VanVoessen.

Mr. King presented his attendants with gold tie clasps.

For her honeymoon to the Pocono Mountains, the former Miss Bowers chose a toast-colored dress and hat, dark brown slippers and bag, white gloves and a pink topper. She wore the orchid from her bridal bouquet. Upon their return the newlyweds will reside in an apartment at 1604 Farragut avenue.

The bride is employed at Minnetonka Mining & Mfg. Co. plant, and the bridegroom by the Warner Company, Morrisville.

Following the wedding a reception was held in The Travel Club home, with 50 guests attending. For the ceremony, the mother of the bridegroom wore a black crepe dress with lace top, black accessories, and a red carnation corsage. The bride's mother chose a rose crepe dress with lace top, with navy blue accessories. Her corsage was of light blue carnations.

"photo." Later that day he met Mr. and Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Stowell at the designated diner, and showed them the photograph. The Bakers, although quite certain that the one nearest the camera was their son, wanted no doubts to cloud their minds. They searched successfully, with a magnifying glass, for a scar on the young man's right eye-brow, and their joy knew no bounds.

At once the Baker family contacted the Adjutant General's office in Washington, D. C., advising of their identification of the picture, and asking if their son might be contacted.

The Bakers had not seen the young man since May. Pvt. Baker has been in the army for nearly three years. He spent 1½ years in the South Pacific islands before coming home last May. In August he sailed for Korea. The last word the family here had had in reference to the soldier was in December, they being advised that he was missing as of November 20th.

The Bakers formerly lived in Philadelphia, and the soldier had graduated there from the John B. Stetson junior high school. Before entering the army the youth was employed by Sears-Roebuck Co. The Bakers have lived here for five years.

Claiming it the biggest thrill of her life to find that her son no doubt is still alive, Mrs. Baker said this morning: "I've had telephone calls from all over. People have been wonderful, and many have called whom I do not know, saying they are so happy for us."

The picture was distributed by a New York picture agency, which advised that it was received from the China Photo Service in Communist-controlled Peking.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

(Copyright, 1951
King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Mar. 26 — Magadan is a city in Soviet Siberia. It is one of the biggest Russian air bases in existence, equipped with Soviet jet fighters and copies of the U. S. B-29 bombers. In 12 years the city grew from a few shacks to a major aircraft and communication center of 49,000 Russians.

The chance of you or me ever visiting Magadan is nil. Two Americans, however, have been there, or in the vicinity. They are Owen Lattimore, the Baltimore bugle who spends his time now explaining the fine points of Secretary Acheson's foreign policy to school children, and Henry Wallace, the New York State poultry raiser.

Wallace and Lattimore got back from Magadan in Soviet Siberia late in 1944, after we taxpayers had spread them to a free trip for reasons now unknown. Naturally, neither of them could keep quiet about the joys they discovered on their visit. Wallace, a natural, Russian grass lover, tells about the Russian Commander Nikishov, who entertained him.

"Nikishov gambled about, enjoying the wonderful air immensity," Wallace informed a breathless nation when he returned. He said: "Big husky young men, who came out to the Far East from European Russia, work in the gold fields. Such is the return of the exiles to Siberia — they are the pioneers of the machine age, builders of cities."

The lyrics temporarily end here, but keep them in mind. Now for Lattimore. Along with Wallace, he is one of the few Americans ever to set foot in the Magadan country. And just like Wallace, Lattimore could hardly contain himself for joy. He got a job with Elmer Davis' Office of War Information when he returned to the U. S., and when he wasn't telling us what a fine war the Russians were fighting he wrote like this about Magadan: "There has probably never been a more orderly phase of pioneering than the opening up of Russia's far north under the Soviet. Magadan is also part of the domain of a remarkable concern, the Far Northern Construction Company, which can be roughly compared to a combination Hudson's Bay Company and TVA."

five secretary, said Saturday that all residents of the 1,500 acre area would have to be moved if the project was approved.

He pointed out, however, that the Commander Nikishov made quite a bit with Lattimore too.

"Mr. Nikishov, the head of Daltrol, had just been decorated with the Order of Hero of the Soviet Union for his extraordinary achievements," he said. "Both he and his wife have a trained and sensitive interest in art and music and also a deep sense of responsibility."

Now let's look at the facts. Magadan embraces one of the largest Soviet slave labor camps in existence in Russia. Thousands of political prisoners mine gold in the region, keep roads in repair, and they were there long before Lattimore and Wallace visited the place in 1944.

It isn't likely that you'll want to listen to any more Wallace or Lattimore on the subject, but Elinor Lipper, a slight, pert-faced woman in her mid-30's, spent 11 years in the region of Magadan — as a Soviet slave laborer. She has told her story in a book, "Eleven years in Soviet prison camps," published by Henry Regnery Company, Chicago.

David Daltol, author and recognized authority on Soviet Siberia, says the Lipper book is the most authoritative account of slave labor in Russia ever written outside the Politburo. His own books on the same subject have been widely published by Yale University Press.

The almost indestructible Elinor Lipper survived 11 years of starvation and agony as a Soviet slave. She recites names, dates, places and tortures in page after page of her book. She is of German-Jewish parentage, a medical student who went to Berlin from Brussels in 1931. There she became a Communist.

In 1937 she went to Russia to live. Two months after arriving, still glowing with expectations from the "promised land," she was arrested in a purge. In the summer of 1948 she was released, following the intervention of Swiss authorities. She is a Swiss citizen.

Slave labor camps today are unbelievable graveyards of humanity that Communists across the globe refuse to recognize or admit exist. The suckers who buy the Soviet brand of freedom ought to have the Lipper book spoon-fed to them. Wallace and Lattimore might like a sip, also. It won't poison them.

PLAN WISELY AND MAKE INTELLIGENT CHOICE OF FOODS

By Frances Vannoy

(Home Economics Extension Representative)

Three keys to success in buying the family food supply and still keeping within the budget are wise planning, intelligent selection and proper care of food.

These keys to food shopping success are important at all times, but especially now when the cost of living is so much higher. It is necessary to follow these keys to get the most in nutritional value, dollar value, and eating satisfaction from food expenditures.

Key number one, wise planning before visiting the retail store, is one approach to the food-shopping job. Much of the success in actual buying is the result of good plans made in advance.

Wise selection at the store, the second key, requires considerable knowledge of foods, seasons, varieties, and quality signs. If price is better, buy in large quantities, but no more than you have storage space for; buy in bulk if quality is good; ask price before buying; do not shop during rush hours; watch scales, compute costs; compare prices and read labels.

The third key, proper care of food until used is of vital importance, though — often not given enough attention by food shoppers. Food carelessly stored after marketing loses much of its nutritive value and palatability.

Use nutrition guides in planning to obtain well-balanced meals, make out menus before shopping, use a complete shopping list, and select a retail store that will best serve the family needs, are other points to consider. Buy by weight, not by a dime's or a dollar's worth, and buy food for the use that it is to be made of it.

One horsepower is the power required to lift 33,000 pounds one foot in one minute.

Excerpts Given from Report Of Hospital Consultant

sectarian hospital which keeps open its doors to all who may seek its services without regard to race, color or creed.

This hospital project will not only provide a medium for the development of a hospital, but it will serve the purpose of demonstrating to the people of the area the full value of unified community spirit and teamwork not only in this but all future community activities.

In order to establish a normal hospital zone or area, and where boundary lines are only partially indicated by county or state lines, it becomes necessary to complete the outline of such a hospital zone by the inclusion of that portion of the area which is now without a public hospital, and from which its citizens must travel a considerable distance to reach existing hospitals in other counties or states.

The only hospital facilities in Lower Bucks County, between Philadelphia, Trenton, Delaware River and Doylestown, are two small private hospitals, one located in Bristol and one in New Hope. The crowded condition of the hospitals across the river in New Jersey, as well as those of Northeastern Philadelphia, and Abington, in Montgomery County, leaves the people in this vast area without any hospital facilities and solely dependent upon the generosity of their neighbors not only located out of the county, but in the neighboring state.

For the purpose of establishing a normal hospital zone, it is suggested that the area include the following boroughs and townships:

Bensalem Township	11,372
Bristol Township	12,117
Bristol Borough	12,690
Falls Township	3,538
Hulmeville Borough	859
Langhorne Borough	1,574
Langhorne Manor Borough	781
Lower Makefield Township	3,217
Middletown Township	1,971
Morrisville Borough	6,770
Newtown Borough	2,086
Newtown Township	1,012
Tullytown Borough	648
Yardley Borough	1,943

Total Population ..... 63,578

According to the 1950 census, 63,578 persons now reside in this area, as compared to 46,921 in 1940, showing an increase of 17,557 or 38 per cent during the past ten years.

Of the entire state, Bucks County showed the largest increase in population from 1940 to 1950—36,519 or 33.9 per cent. To place further emphasis upon the ever increasing need for a community general hospital, it should be noted that of the total increase for the entire county, 17,557 or 48.6 per cent was in the proposed Lower Bucks County Hospital zone.

The recent industrial developments in the area is justification for the assumption that the growth in population in the next ten years will probably more than double the growth during the past ten years. If this proves to be true, by 1960 the population of the area will have increased to 98,603.

Based on the population figures of the 1950 census, and a recognized minimum safety standard requirement of four hospital beds per thousand inhabitants, this area is in immediate need of 254 beds. It must be borne in mind that this does not take into consideration any future increase in population necessary to meet the employment requirements of the new plant of the United States Steel Corporation and their families. Therefore, by the time the hospital program can be developed, the hospital built and ready for occupancy, the total beds required for adequate protection of the community will be greatly increased from this already known source of additional population alone.

As is well known, the major industry in the area has certainly given every indication of its unqualified support. Other industries now in the area, when approached through the proper channels, will undoubtedly see the wisdom, as well as the desirability from a community welfare and health viewpoint, of having such a worthwhile institution readily available for their employees and the members of their families.

Many persons in the area have been paying premiums or dues for hospital and medical protection ever since such plans were organized. But, because of the lack of a modern community hospital and due to the crowded conditions of neighboring hospitals, they, many times, have been denied the very benefits for which they have been and are still paying thousands of dollars in dues as premiums. In fact, one large employer reports that the combined corporate and employee annual premiums paid for this protection amounts to $125,000.

The need for a modern hospital for Lower Bucks County is not only clearly indicated from a life saving and health viewpoint, but it is an economic necessity.

The new plant of the United States Steel Corporation now being erected in the area will be only a few miles from the proposed hospital site. This great corporation has long since demonstrated its interest in the health and welfare of its employees and their families, and there is every reason to believe that it will show the same interest in those who will soon move to this area.

When the state-wide survey of existing hospitals and the needs for additional hospitals in Pennsylvania was made in 1946 under the provisions of the Hill-Burton Act of Congress, the Lower Bucks County Area, being without a recognized hospital organization from which the survey authorities could obtain factual information, arbitrarily included this large and greatly underhospitalized area in that of the Bryn Mawr-Norristown-Abington Zone. As a matter of fact, and in order to show a true picture, Bucks County should have been set up as a separate zone.

The area is now being restudied by the state authorities for rezoning and equitable priority rating, the results of which should assure federal assistance.

The Lower Bucks County Hospital Board having once established the minimum hospital bed requirements for adequate service and protection for the people of the community, and after having determined the probable cost, should place all of the facts squarely before the community—at large, through a well directed public campaign, and in this manner let the people of the community determine to what extent they are willing to contribute the necessary amount of money for their own health and protection.

While it is frequently claimed that each city or area is different from all others when it comes to raising large sums of money, experience has proven that the reactions of the people of the average American community are identical, and that if a campaign is properly organized and directed, the over-all community response will show a minimum of $20 and a maximum of $200 per capita contribution. On the basis of a population of 60,000 and a per capita contribution of $25, there is every indication that $1,500,000 can be raised.

Computed on the present day population, the efforts of the Hospital Board should be directed toward the establishment of a hospital of at least 100 beds. A detailed budget submitted as part of this report and which is predicated upon existing rates charged in the area, payroll and supply cost estimates, indicates the following:

Based on 50 per cent occupancy, for the first year the gross income will be $273,879. After deducting an allowance for free or below cost services of $33,120, the net anticipated cash income will be $240,759, with an estimated operating expense of $298,170, making the net loss for the first year's operation $57,411.

With 75 per cent occupancy, for the second year the gross income will be $410,862. After deducting $48,180 for free or below cost services, the net anticipated cash income will be $362,682. The estimated expense will be $356,660. On this basis, there will be a net gain of $6,022 for the second year's operation.

Based on 85 per cent occupancy, for the third year the gross income will be $471,599. After deducting an allowance for free or below cost services of $52,998, the net anticipated cash income will be $418,592, with an estimated expense of $404,080. There will be a net gain of $14,512.

It should be noted that this budget estimate does not take into consideration any county or state funds which, if obtained, would greatly improve the budget picture.

Very careful consideration should be given to the question of the professional staff of the hospital. The Hospital Board should be ever conscious of the fact that while it may be possible to raise the necessary funds and to build and equip one of the finest hospital buildings in the country, in a strict sense a building and equipment, no matter how fine, does not constitute a hospital. It is the service which is furnished the patients that really makes a hospital. The board of the hospital should not be satisfied with anything less than the highest possible standard in medical and surgical care. The hospital should be so organized and operated as to meet the standard requirements of the American College of Surgeons and the American Medical Association.

There is every indication that the cooperation of outstanding physicians and surgeons in the surrounding area will make it possible for this hospital to establish a professional staff of the highest caliber and one of which the board and the public can be justly proud.

IMPROPER DIETING MAY RESULT IN VERY POOR HEALTH

By Frances Vannoy
(Home Economics Extension Representative)
Desire to be slim influences some girls and women to adopt dangerous practices with regard to food. Many dieters assume that the way to reduce is to leave out all fat, starches, sweets, and foods they consider fattening. Such haphazard diets usually leave out some foods essential to body needs.

Recent studies show that the body needs extra protein while losing weight to maintain good health. This means one serving of meat, fish, or poultry each day, at least four eggs a week, and one serving of dried beans or peanut butter every day. A lack of protein in the diet of teen-age girls can affect their health in later life.

Poor reducing diets are often lacking in minerals and vitamins. They help the body to function normally. A short supply may result in rough, dry skin, inflammation of the eyes, or skin disorders, as well as nervousness and irritability.

Milk is an essential food for the minerals and vitamins that it provides. It can be taken in the form of skim milk or cottage cheese when you are reducing. A citrus fruit or tomato every day and a small amount of fat, at least a tablespoon or two daily, are important. Green and yellow vegetables and raw fruits are excellent sources of vitamins and iron. They will be included daily in any good diet. If you are reducing, check your diet for these essentials.

Maintaining normal weight is good for health as well as for a good appearance. Do not destroy your health while you achieve a trim figure. Consult a physician if excess poundage is very great before you start any reducing program.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

Chicken pie . . . mashed potatoes . . . green beans . . . buttered whole kernel corn . . . green salad . . . whipped cream cake.

Does that menu appeal to you as one your family will like this coming Sunday? It's recommended this week by the A & P Service for Homemakers.

In preparing your chicken for a pie, cut it up as you would for fricassee. Place in pot and add enough hot water to cover. Simmer slowly with cover on until chicken is tender. Add a little more water if necessary.

Roll out a fairly thick crust and place it in a large pie plate. Put in the chicken meat and season with salt and pepper. Add one cup of gravy made with two tablespoons of flour and a cup of stock. Cover with a crust rolled thinner than the bottom one. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for half an hour. Gravy made from flour and the additional stock should be served in a gravy dish.

If you and members of your family have no particular need to fear an occasional surplus of calories, whipped cream cake is as frothy and delectable as it sounds. Here's how it's made:

Sift together three times one and a half cups of cake flour, a quarter teaspoon of salt and two teaspoons of baking powder. Whip one cup of cream until thick, then add two well-beaten eggs, whipping until light as foam. Add one cup of sugar and one teaspoon of vanilla and beat again. Add to flour mixture. Bake in greased layer cake pans in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 25 to 30 minutes. Makes two layers. Cook and spread whipped cream between layers and on top.

NO. 2 FOR EDDIE? - - - By Alan Maver

EDDIE SAWYER
MANAGER OF THE PHILLIES.
IS OUT TO MAKE THE LEAGUE'S
FIRST SUCCESSFUL
PENNANT DEFENSE
IN 7 YEARS!

IF EDDIE BELIEVES IN OMENS HE SHOULD BE PLEASED THAT THE
EXPERTS WHO HAND THE
RED SOX THE PENNANT
BEFORE EACH SEASON HAVE ONLY TABBED THE PHILS FOR 3RD!

THE 'WHIZ KIDS'
DON'T AGREE THAT CHILDREN SHOULD BE IN AFTER DARK—
THEY PAGED
THE LEAGUE
IN 1950 NIGHT
COMPETITION—
AND HAVE 5
ADDITIONAL ON-
CONTESTS IN '51!
